

Blue-Green Snapper (Uku)

Although uku may not be the main target species, the species has captivated interests of commercial and recreational fisherman alike. This report card explores 8 different categories that could influence the fishery. A ranking of low, medium, and high are given based on how each category effects the fishery.

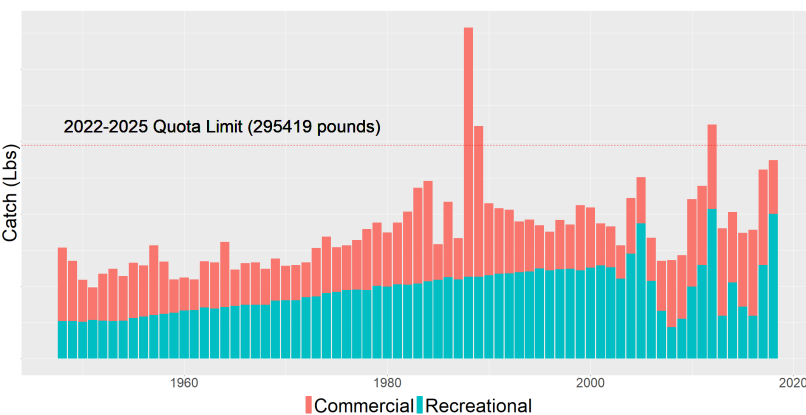

In 2021, there was a -30% change in commercial pounds caught relative to the historical mean (86121.47 pounds).

The average catch from the recreational fishery is 94755 pounds

The price for uku is $3.14(2000 dollars) which amounts to a 13% change in price relative to the historical mean ($2.77).

There were 1006 commercial trips in 2021 which is a -30% change relative to the historical mean (1427.47).

There were 278 commercial licenses in 2021 which is a -24% change relative to the historical mean (365.14).

Commercial catch by gear type 2018

Category	Rank
Socioeconomic Indicators	Low
Non-Commercial Importance	High
Commercial Value	High
Participation	Low
Market Importance	Medium
Ecosystem Indicators	Medium
Diversification	TBA
Inequality	TBA

Corelation between Uku and all other archipelagic Species

